

www.digital-review.org - The Digital Review site reports on the state-of-practice of ICTs in the region. It covers the innovative ways new technologies are being deployed to advance the socio-economic development of Asia-Pacific countries. The website will interest all those who work at societal transformation through ICTs for development, including policymakers, members of industry, ICT specialists and development practitioners both in the Asia-Pacific region and internationally.

www.eprimers.org - The e-primers site houses a variety of primers aimed at providing readers with a clear understanding of the various terminologies, definitions, trends, and issues associated with the information age. The primers will interest planners and decision makers in addressing pertinent issues and crafting policies and strategies appropriate for the information economy.

Asia-Pacific Development Information Programme, Wisma UN, Block C, Kompleks Pejabat Damansara, Jalan Dungan, Damansara Heights, 50490 Kuala Lumpur, Malaysia
 Tel: +603 2095 9122 Fax: +603 2093 9740 Email: info@apdip.net

ONLINE INITIATIVES of Asia-Pacific Development Information Programme

www.iosn.net - The International Open Source Network (IOSN) is a Centre of Excellence and Clearinghouse for Information on Free/Open Source Software (FOSS) aimed at FOSS advocates and specialists, policy-makers, NGOs, and others.

www.eAPF.net - The Asian Parliamentarians Forum serves as a platform for information exchange and networking of Asian Parliamentarians on Information and Communication Technology for Development (ICT4D).

www.apdip.net - In collaboration with National Governments, APDIP seeks to assist national and regional institutions in Asia-Pacific to improve access, knowledge-sharing, networking, management, and application of ICTs for social and economic development. APDIP also helps to target and focus regional ICT initiatives to achieve relevant development goals by making ICT an integral part of development cooperation and solutions.

www.egovaspac.org - eGovASPAC serves as a guide for policy- and decision-makers to e-Government resources on Asia-Pacific.